The Nissan Sunny by Yogita Bali

Article published on December 12th 2011 | Auto

The Nissan Sunny is one of the best cars to be launched in recent times in the Indian market. Nissan had initially a slow start in India but the scales changed with the launch of the Nissan Micra. Now with the sedan, Sunny, Nissan is going strong to be one of the top contenders for the year 2011 in the automobile market. Its first sneak peek was provided in the month of August and was then launched in October 2011 to coincide with the festive season. With superior designing and compact structure, it is one of the most well designed cars in the recent times.

Japan has always been associated with automobile brands that believe in providing its customers good, luxurious cars at prices which are more or less affordable. The Nissan Sunny too, starts from the price range of 5.78 lakhs. This model, the Sunny XE, has a 1.5 liter petrol engine. The Nissan Sunny XL costs 6.88 lacs. The top end model, Sunny XV goes up to 7.68 lakhs. Taxes extra. The pricing makes it possible for the large middle class section of India to own a sedan.

The Nissan Sunny has been around from 1960â€™s and after around 45 years, this is the 10th generation model. As far as the other features are concerned, they too are also quite impressive. The total fuel capacity is of 41 liters. It has an electronic power steering and a minimum turning radius of 5.3 m. It is available in Bronze Grey, Blade Silver, Storm White, Sapphire Blue, Onyx Black and Brick Red colors. All of them are bright and cheerful and equally tasteful.

The production of the car in India takes place in their factories in the outskirts on Chennai and the car itself sells in around 170 countries across the world. The Nissan Sunny has some interesting accessories like the floor mats, luggage mat, neck and cushion pillow set, steering covers, seat covers in leather, LED kicking plate, remote locking and some others. It also has alloy wheels and chrome plated radiator grille, roof antennae, green tinted glass, full wheel covers, body colored bumpers and of course the signature jewel shaped headlights and many more such interesting features.

Those who are looking forward to buying a sedan can opt for the Nissan Sunny. In terms of the pricing and the features, it is one of the best buys this year when it comes to automobiles.
