When one asks for a romantic getaway in Texas, they definitely have no idea what they are going to get from the state. The lone star state has plenty of options for romance.

Small Town Escape

If you fancy a mushy romantic flick, then a small town escape is just for you. The picturesque town square of Granbury, Texas is straight out of any Hollywood flick. The town offers you plenty of picture-perfect places, nice eateries, shopping and ample scope to sneak a kiss. The place has posh B&B, which you can enjoy during your stay.

Urban Escape

The urban gateway definitely includes Dallas and Houston. These two places have charms of their own and the riverside of San Antonio is one of the most romantic getaways in texas. You can book any of the resorts in San Antonio and ask them to arrange a Texas wine tasting just for the two of you. You can also plan an intimate dinner cruise on the Rio San Antonio. One of the best ways to enjoy your vacation is by holding hands and exploring the idyllic views and quaint shops and restaurants along the River Walk.

Quirky Artists' Escape

If you fancy an unusual destination then the little art town of Marfa, Texas is for you. Several magazines have chosen the place as the most romantic destinations for a reason. You will be surprised to find out how the 340-acre military fort is turned into an art museum. This is a must for any art lover and is the reason why Marfa is prominent on the map. One of the best things about being at Marfa on a weekday is lunch at the Food Shark cart.

Golf and Spa Getaway

If both of you want spending time together then definitely try one of the many resorts in Texas Hill Country. You can spend part of the day inside the resort playing golf, while letting the lady spoil herself in the Spa. However, if you start feeling adventurous, then you can drive to Austin and indulge in some sumptuous barbecue.
