Hit â€˜em where it hurts with a Direct Mail campaign by Julia Roger

Article published on December 14th 2011 | Internet

Want to reach out to new customers and tell them about the fabulous products you make, the wonderful services you have to offer, and the general all-round brilliance of your business? In the current climate, with many companies struggling for business, a bold approach is often the best.

This is no time to sit back you need to be thinking of the future by using a Direct Mail campaign. Consider Direct Mailing as your medium and reach out to a specific client base, use Direct Mail to sell your services and your products.

You wonâ€™t drum up new business sat waiting for new sales leads, be proactive with a Direct Mail solution. Tell new customers who you are, grab their attention, and let Direct Mail work wonders on your behalf.

Ways to use Direct Mail

Be imaginative with a Direct Mail campaign and there are many ways you can capture the imagination of your target audience. One of the most popular uses of Direct Mailing is to pop envelopes in the post that contain product magazines or your latest offers. Would customers take the time to open envelopes delivered as part of a Direct Mail campaign though? Is there a chance they could toss them straight them straight into the bin?

Why not send leaflets as part of the Direct Mail solution, or have flyers delivered instead. Theyâ€™re high impact products that say it as it comes, theyâ€™ll get your message across to the masses. Then again, you might want to send Direct Mail in clear poly-wrap packages that protect their contents. Customers can clearly see whatâ€™s inside using this method and their appetite is firmly whetted.

Make them feel wanted

Reach out to a new customer base with Direct Mailing and you want to sell your services in the best possible light. Sure, you need to be forthright with the Direct Mail but you also need to make your customers feel wanted, thereâ€™s a greater chance theyâ€™ll buy something from you if they do.

In essence when your Direct Mail lands on their doorstep a customer should be given the impression they will benefit from your services, or their life will be enhanced somehow if they buy the products you sell.

So pick your Direct Mail partner with care and get them to deliver a proven campaign that works perfectly for all parties involved. Mailing services can and will make a difference to your company, be savvy in the current climate and use Direct Mail to drive your message home.
