Article published on January 11th 2012 | Cooking

A spice or herb is a dried fruit, seed, bark, root, leaf, or vegetative elements used for preparing food or formulating medicines because of its nutritional value. These products are also used as a food preservative for the reason of taste, colour, or as an additive that kills unsafe microorganisms or prevents their growth. For other purposes, such as medicine, spiritual rituals, cosmetics products, perfumes, or eating as vegetables, these substances are used by many people. As you, know that turmeric is also used as an additive, liquorice as a medicine and garlic as a vegetable. The best part is that these organic spices and herbs, is that they are easily available online in various web stores.

While cooking, organic spices and herbs are used for flavouring. Herbs, such as are used fresh, like basil which are commonly chopped into smaller pieces to put into the dishes. Spices, though, are dried out and frequently ground or grated into fine particles like powder. Herbs are the aromatic leaves of a variety of yearly or perennial plants that are cultivated in moderate zones and do not have woody stems. Herbs can be availed in dried or fresh form. Choose herbs that have a clean, fresh fragrance and a bright colour without any sign of wilting or browning. They can be stored in the refrigerator, wrapped in a barely damp paper towel, and sealed airtight in a plastic bag for up to 5 days.

The art of using organic spices and herbs is learning how much to add and how to combine flavours. Several guidelines suggest amounts to use in developing recipes: Use strong, pungent spices such as red pepper in small amounts. Seasoning that is more delicate can be used in greater amounts without ruining the final product. Although the herb or spice should enhance and not overpower the flavour, cultural preferences will influence your decision.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/cooking-articles/buy-good-organic-spices-online.htm - Article Side

Julia Roger - About Author:
For more information on a organic spices online, check out the info available online; these will help you learn to find the a organic spices and herbs!

Article Keywords:
Organic Spices Online, Organic Spices and Herbs

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!