Anyone with a lot of trash needs a dumpster rental. Homeowners, contractors, construction companies, businesses, medical practices, schools and non-profit organizations all need dumpsters sometimes. Fortunately, dumpster rental companies can fill the need.

Who Needs a Dumpster?

Do-it-yourself remodeling projects often produce too much trash to put into a standard trash can. Rather than piling rubbish in the back yard, homeowners can rent a dumpster to contain it. Dumpsters com in various sizes, so homeowners can order an appropriate model for every job. Contractors and builders usually need a dumpster rental whenever they do work for a client. Dumpsters large enough for construction sites help builders dispose of all trash properly, without littering.

When businesses close, remodel or move, they can generate a lot of waste. Dumpster rentals can help. Business owners and managers can speak with a professional service representative who can help estimate the proper size dumpster needed for a client. Non profit organizations can use a dumpster rental for clean up days or for fundraising efforts like paper drives. Organizations can call rental companies to get help deciding what kind of dumpster a group should rent.

How to Rent a Dumpster

When homeowners, business people or community leaders need a dumpster, they can call a dumpster broker or they can call a local dumpster provider. Large, national companies often hire brokers to provide dumpster rentals. Local individuals and organizations usually want the cost savings and personalized service that comes from renting from a local company.

Dumpsters usually have rating based on the number of cubic yards of storage they offer. A 10-yeard dumpster, for example, holds about 10 cubic yards of trash. These dumpsters measure about 12-feet long, 8-feet wide and 4-feet tall. This size of dumpster might be all homeowners need to clean out basements or attics. Other common sizes are 20-, 30- and 40-foot dumpsters. Many dumpster providers have larger dumpsters available, so prospective customers should call to discuss requirements.

How Much Do Dumpsters Cost?

Dumpster providers usually price rentals based on the size of a container, how many times they need to empty the container, the weight of refuse and the nature of the discarded material. Any waste that contains hazardous materials costs more to dump than standard rubbish. Customers who put prohibited materials into their rented dumpsters must pay fines and fees associated with an improper disposal attempt. Every dumpster rental differs from the next, especially in different parts of the country. Prospective customers should always call several providers to compare prices and services.
