Article published on June 27th 2012 | K-12 Education

Children are marvellous little creatures. They have numerous ways of expressing their surprises, expressions, and ideas. Their minds are not limited to a specific direction, unlike the grown-ups? They feel, love, express, experience, participate, try, invent, and share every wonderful thing available on our planet. Their imaginations reach places beyond our reach. Wouldnâ€™t you want to preserve this innocence before they grow up to be practical and materialistic adults like some of us?

A good childhood and a sound upbringing is the base of a strong and meaningful society. Behind every high ranking stalwart today, is a kindergarten teacher - the teacher who opened his mind to the beyond, gave him wings to reach his visions, and guided him like a lamp in the dark. When we all look back, we see teachers who helped us play and learn numbers, alphabets, colours, objects, and more such fundamental aspects. We also see a past that moulded us to become successful established individuals.

Kindergarten schools, often known as pre-schools, are the essential because they form the base of a personâ€™s future. It had been a debatable topic for a certain period of time, but as times grew more competitive, parents began to understand the importance and benefits of a preschool. Even if we were to separate the competitiveness factor out of the discussion, we would find that kindergarten schools enrich a child not only knowledgeably, but also as a person.

Apart from learning the basics of reading, writing, science, math, and other subjects, and preparing him for the 1st grade, preschools prepare him for life. The important aspect of kindergarten learning is socialization â€“ socialization at an early age. A nursery is a place where a child is exposed to new people, and children of his age. It is the time when the child develops social and communication skills. The sooner a child learns to communicate, the better for him to socialize. As the child involves in activities like talking and playing with more people, values of sharing and cooperation are developed.

Another thing Kindergarten schools are known for is that they acclimatize the child to the school environment. With a child leaving home for school at an early age may not go down well. This is why preschools facilitate parentsâ€™ participation. Children enjoy with their peer group in the presence of their parents. As the child gets accustomed to the environs, he doesnâ€™t feel alienate on his first day at school.

The foundation of Kindergarten schools is nothing but pure love and concern for the young ones. Through a systematic method of learning, the preschools aim at widening the boundaries of a childâ€™s experiences and possibilities. Creating an exciting and stimulating environment, where the children are given the freedom to play, observe, explore and question cheerfully, kindergarten school develop their thinking skills.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/k-12-education-articles/why-does-your-child-need-kindergarten-education.htm - Article Side

Rupertharris - About Author:

SIS PREP leading Preschool for the first step of your child. We offer Kindergarten education, Nursery, Child development, Primary School, Communication skills and more from our preschool curriculum. Welcome to the world of happiness. Happy, Fun and Joy await your kids at SIS PREP (Marine Drive).

Article Keywords:
Nursery Schools, Mother Toddlers, International Schools, Mumbai

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!