You have planned for an overseas tour. At this time, the most important thing for you is to stay in touch with your near and dear ones along with people from your workplace. It is also not possible to carry your personal mobile and local connection abroad due to exorbitant roaming charges. Thus, the only option that you can avail is to rent international phone from the various service provider at the destination country. This operational phone would support you throughout the tour. A phone is also used for giving road maps, assistance with reservations and helping with many other functions.

At times, the phone that you use in your own country would not work all in a different country due to the different settings. Then it may not support international phone calls as well. There can be a lot of problem in that way. Thus, it is always better to either rent a mobile phone or satellite phone when you are touring remote areas. Renting is a better option than purchasing since you would not stay abroad for long and buying a phone is waste of money since you already have a phone back home.

You can get in touch with the best service provider at the destination country to book an international mobile phone. This would ensure that you get the phone as soon as you visit the country. They would mail you the phone and the connection to the address that you would provide them. On before you return back, you just need to mail the mobile back to the agency. You need to make a security deposit to them since you are renting a mobile phone. The money would be refunded to you as soon as service provider gets the phone back.
