Article Side

How to Clean Cars Perfectly by George Peterson

Article published on January 5th 2012 | Auto

The best way to show off some great standards and quality in your status is to keep your house and surroundings clean. Even if the house is not in an impressive look, the cleanliness around can give you the good impressions you need. The same factor is crucial for your cars too. As the cars we own are pure symbol of our lifestyles and social status, we need to keep them in the perfect looks to stay good. It is not a tedious task if we are doing it right.

Above all if your brand new car is dirty and untidy, there is no point in having such a fabulous car in your porch. It will only help you to create a wrong impression on your neighbors as well as others. However when cleaning a car you need to be very careful in order to do it perfectly without any defects or other issues. Before you startup with your cleaning procedure, ensure that you are completely aware of the right procedures and methods to get the exact results.

Getting started with the process

As in any tasks the first thing you need to do when about to start cleaning procedures is to collect all objects and tools needed for the process. Ensure that all cleaning supplies are near you and make a clear picture about for what and where are they placed. Next step is to park the car in a cool place, if the engine and other parts are hot then allow them to cool for a while. Put some soap into a bucket and mix it thoroughly with water until it produce necessary bubbles and soapy.

It is important to use soaps specially designed for car washing. Otherwise you may end up with some nasty results. As most cars will be having a wax effect on its surface, usage of other detergents may cause lose of this shine! After this make your car is wet by using water and remove all dust, dirt or grim in the body, tires and other external parts.

Remove all dirt carefully

Next step is to soak a soft cloth into the soapy water and start wiping the car. You must start from the top portion of the car. As the bottom part of the car will be more dirty and untidy than the upper potions it is important to keep your upper portions safe from scribbles or other scratching effects. Do not forget to rinse the cloth with water before each time you dip it with the soapy water. When cleaning the tires you must use little more rough materials. This will help you to clean them more effectively, as these are the most easily dirt accumulating areas in your cars.

After this, rinse your car thoroughly with water, remove all the soap from the car and dry it using a cloth. After this you can use any of the car polish you get in the market to achieve a better shining and finish for your car. Allow the car to get dry naturally and enjoy the new glossy looks of it.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/auto-articles/how-to-clean-cars-perfectly.htm - Article Side

George Peterson - About Author:
I am quite big car lover and I have to say I enjoy driving my a Passat 1 9 tdi quite a lot. The main thing that it requires is genuine VW spare parts (in Danish the term is a VW reservedele)

Article Keywords:
car cleaning, car maintenance, car tips, car advice

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!