Car has been built not simply to make transportation easy and simple. But, it is also meant to protect the driver and passengers in the event of an accident. About repair work, most of repairs done to car are based on vehicle safety standards to make sure the installation of various parts meets the performance requirements.

Windshield is counted among safety devices of vehicles as it offers structural strength to the vehicle. Adding to it, it also helps in keeping the passengers protected if any accident occurs. Along with the quality of windshield, the auto glass replacement experts also consider the quality and proper installation of adhesive.

Individuals should understand the fact that the use of quality adhesive is important to make a strong bond between glass and vehicle. Moreover, some of the auto service experts have also been found doing the installation in a wrong way. They do not use right kind of adhesive; they jeopardize the life of people just to save few dollars. This is the reason why it is important to go for a professional and experienced service provider.

If we talk about the structural integrity of vehicle, it is the windshield that forms 18 to 20 percent of the total structural integrity of all kinds of vehicles. The air bags can become ineffective if the windshield is not installed properly. Adding to it, it also prevents the roof not to be caved on the passengers in case of any accident.

Installation is not that tough. It is simply required to follow the steps to make sure it is done in a right way. An essential step in this regard is to first remove the old adhesive followed by using the primers properly over the glass and body of a car. Next essential step is to apply urethane and allow the vehicle not to be touched for around 24 hours and may be more in winter.

Certain quality standards are there which are considered for the installation of glass. Auto glass repair experts follow such standards to reduce crash injuries while some shops do not even apply urethane during the repair or replacement. It is thus mandatory for the car owners to confirm if the shops follow standards and car maker's specifications, if they use urethane, proper cure time and much more. One of the best solutions in this regard will be to go for an experienced and highly proficient auto glass replacement service expert as it is about the safety of both life and vehicles.
