Clothes Make the Man: Dressing to Impress on the First Date by Lee Dove

Article published on March 12th 2012 | Shopping

The first dateâ€”it's the Genesis of the relationship bible. It's that all-important time when two individuals determine whether they are better to remain as friends or bring their relationship a notch higher. The first date can be compared to a test drive; the pair will spend precious time together to find out each otherâ€™s issues, seek out the good points, and determine compatibility. Looking at this information, it's only imperative that you leave a lasting effect on your date.

Getting ready for the first date can be quite nail-bitingâ€”even if you've been in a thousand relationships in the past. The secret is to take points easy and remember to enjoy no matter how difficult things become. To make a good first impression, one of the things you should focus on is your outfit.

Remember the popular saying, "Clothes make the man". This is true, especially that clothes represent around 90 percent of your appearance. Regardless of how beautiful or virile you may appear, it all goes down the drain if you dress horribly. It's also important to remember that what you wear expresses your personality. A sloppy toilette versus a clean one can be a make or break at this time.

The golden rule of dressing up is to wear something appropriate to the event or place. It's silly to go to an area where you 'll be noticeable simply because you look absolutely different. Save your date with dignity by reading the tips listed below.

Movie Dates. Most men choose to have dinner and watch a movie on the first date. For this occasion, do not make a major effort. Select basic men clothes like a good top, paired with jeans and sneakers. Dressing sharply on the first date can give her larger expectations on the nextâ€”provided there will be another one. Be modest fashion-wise and show her your real self.

Musical Performances. The dialogue is the most important part of the dateâ€”however the proper music can set the atmosphere. If you're taking her to music shows, take into account the nature of the music and the place. Mellow music tells you to wear your finest clothes. A good suit can bring out the Prince Charming in you. Alternatively, settle for basic clothing for men if you're taking her to pop or rock concerts.

Night Spots. If you will go clubbing along with her at one of the coolest nightclubs, then you need to place your best foot forward and don your trendiest outfit. In the event you think that nothing in your clothing collection looks good enough, don't be afraid to shop. Visit shops that have both short and tall mens apparel to prepare yourself for the evening.
