Safe Driving- an Overview by Mariana Nikki

Article published on January 4th 2012 | Auto

Safe driving is not only healthy and obligation on yourself but also for the whole environment. If you are hitting a car you are not only doing your own damage but also you are damaging the whole society in the form of the other driverâ€™s life, the people sitting with him/ her and the car too.What happens if you car meets an accident, close your eyes, sit for a second and then think for a while. All the circumstances you can face and every other thing that you may have to see including the other car which you got hit with. You can most probably hit your car to a very worse extent. This will require financing for the repairs to be made. Then, on second you can even hurt yourself to a very bad extent; you can get injured break your bones and can even be hospitalized. Now think about the other car, the car itself will have to face swerve damage.

It may require repair and if the engine gets damaged it will cost a very huge loss of the car. What will happen to the other person driving and the passengers sitting in the car? They can get injured or in some cases where the car accident was very serious. They can even die. These are all the consequences of not driving safely.Safe driving is that is why known as an obligation for everyone, it is not some moral or ethics you have to follow, but some rules laid on which are bound to be followed. Here are some points laid down on which h you can make your drive safe as well as enjoyable on the same time. The first and the most important tip is avoidance of over speeding, over speeding is nothing but a pill to kill you your own hands. While trying to reach a destination a few minutes early can cost you a very high fine. You can even kill yourself.

The chances of accidents increase by 17% in the case of over speeding. There is just a few minutes difference that you may have to face, but you can save yourself up to 100% by avoiding over speeding. Second, yet another useful tip include the number of people that are to sit in the car. Such people are called passengers. If you try to increase the number of passengers, it not only morally wrong but unsafe for the driver. If the car is too full it can even increase the chance of accidents. The driver gets distracted and can lose his span of attention. One very important tip is that wear safety seat belts while driving. The seat belt is very essential and a shield protecting you from car accidents. There are many cases reported in which the driver or the passengers were not wearing seat belts and they had swear injuries as the pressure was so high that there ribs got crashed and they died. Seat belt is an obligation in almost every country as a driving safety.
