Article published on December 2nd 2011 | Technology

Portable two way radios are much in demand nowadays in sectors like hospitality, tourism, retail and even the military where quick communication is a must. Many still prefer to use the old age method of telephone but that does not give the user the flexibility that this device renders. Here are some major advantages.

â€¢ Portability: Its first advantage is of course its portability. You can carry it wherever you want. While speaking at the other end, both the users can change their positions quickly to keep each other updated about any changes in the vicinity.

â€¢ Ease of Communication: Again, when activity is at its peak, it can be very cumbersome to reach for the intercom or dial numbers. With a few well defined push to talk buttons, the portable two way radio can make communication easy. It is wireless, so no hassles with extra wires and cables.

â€¢ Better Signal: Unlike regular cell phones, these radios have very good signal capture. Their sensors are very powerful so even the military can use them while hiding in an ambush. They cover a much wider area and the technology used renders crystal clear talking even from far off locations.

â€¢ Solar Recharged Batteries: Some of the portable two way radios can also support solar charged batteries. This is great when they are used outdoors for long periods of time. No wonder they are often favored by adventurers and the similar people who have to stay connected even when they are far off from modern facilities.

Add to all of this, the really affordable pricing and you can buy a portable two way radio and see for yourself what improvements it makes for your daily communication.
