Effective Tips for Last Minute Holidays by Samwalker

Article published on December 3rd 2011 | Aviation

Last minute holidays are the outcome of hard-to-escape wanderlust. Limited or lack of availability of seats aboard the airline flights usually lead to the travellers paying exorbitant prices for flights. This rule also applies to hotel booking and paying a premium to book the hotel of ones choice is not unheard of. While it may be hard to lay hands on great flights and hotel deals at the last moment, it is not impossible. All one need is to be a bit heedful of some effective tips that decidedly help in buying cheapest flights tickets and above all making holiday, an unforgettable affair.

Browse the Internet

Since the internet is jam-packed with infinite online travel companies that offer airlines tickets to the preferred destination, holidaymakers are spoilt for choices. Travellers can grab that perfect last minute deal with lowest fares on airline tickets even few days before their travel. Consult the price matching websites that abound the internet and facilitate booking of flight airline tickets by comparing a number of fares from various online travel companies. These flight comparison tools can be used very easily and veritably make for a handy way to net the best of the flight deals.

Directly Contact the Airline

Another best way to get your hands on an economic deal is to directly contact the airline. Some airlines may face the situation of spare tickets due to certain passengers not showing up and in order to fill the planes and to prevent loss, they sell these surplus seats at very cheap prices. Call the airline directly for getting the inside information about the extra tickets, discounts and other unadvertised deals, available at the latest possible moment.

Go for Package Holidays

Be it last minute holiday or a long planned holiday, booking a package deal always works out cheaper than booking the flights and hotels separately. Booking a holiday package can at times save as much as forty percent of your travel cost. In addition, many airlines sell cheap inclusive tour fares which include accommodation as a part of the fare. Last minute holidaymakers can check for availability of these IT fares with their travel agents.

Get the Help of Airline Consolidators

Travel consolidators are the wholesalers of flight tickets in the travel industry. These consolidators buy tickets in large volumes and resell at relatively cheaper prices than the published or advertised prices of the airlines. Many travel agents have contracts with the airlines and act as consolidators for them. Travellers would do well to book their flights with these travel agents in order to make significant savings on booking last minute holidays.
