Article published on May 12th 2012 | Babies

Parenthood is the special status that many long for. It is a time to cherish and celebrate, where you have your own son or daughter whom you could relish being with and enjoy watching grow. This is when you step into the next phase in life, start off a new relationship with a young soul that would give you new meanings out of your own life. With new relationships, you would have new responsibilities and new experiences. This is one phase in life that you would not want to miss in any way and would lock them up in your memories forever. The best way you could do that would be with photographs, digital or printed. However, with our baby growing so fast and assuming new forms and shapes every day, how would you recall when particular snaps were taken and what stage your baby was in during the different phases of his or her childhood? Onesie stickers would solve that issue for you and help you get over the uncomfortable choice of keeping awkward boards next to your kids as you take memorable snaps that you would cherish all your life.

Onesie stickers form that crucial link between your photographs, your memories and the exact stages in your childâ€™s life when you watched them do stuff. The very first step your baby took, that unforgettable smile that the little one flashed, the awesome way in which your little princess managed that step without slipping down, the incredible expressions, they all have a date and a day, and you would love to know, when you look back at the pictures, which month was it since the baby was born. And the best tool that would serve you right would be onesie stickers.

Onesie stickers are the perfect way to mark the various stages in your kidâ€™s life without being too bothered about how you would go about recording them. Onesie Stickers are available in a whole range of colours, designs and themes that you and your little one would love to feature. With specially created designs to go with your childâ€™s moods and with gender specific designs, colours and flavours, ranging from cute characters, cool fruits, lively birds and lovely animals, onesie stickers would not just be a way to note down when you took some of your favourite photographs of your loved ones but would be just the right companions that would make your snaps come to life.
