Basic dog grooming tips for new owners by Canberra Marketing

Article published on December 3rd 2011 | Business

As a proud dog owner, you must remember that dog grooming isn't just about keeping your pet looking handsome but is more closely related with keeping it strong and healthy. While it makes sense to send the dog to a qualified groomer on a monthly basis for top results, it's also significant for dog owners to know how to administer straightforward grooming responsibilities. While grooming a dog does involve a bit of a learning curve, many of the best dog grooming tips have to do with what most dog owners and groomers already have lots of, a love for dogs.

The best tip for dog grooming is to make grooming as pleasurable an experience as possible for both the pet and the owner. Check that your pet is comfortable, then start with short sessions and steadily extend the time. Once your pet gets used to standard grooming, it will start looking forward to it, making grooming sessions a great opportunity for bonding. For the owner, the obvious pay off is a dog that loves you more and the pleasure of knowing you have a healthy and happy pet.

Brushing and combing your dog's hair regularly will help remove dirt, pests and dead hair, untangle knots and spread natural oils through your pet's coat, making it healthier and shinier. The frequency of brushing your dog, as well as the variety of brush to use, usually depends on the length and kind of its coat. Dogs with short, smooth coats normally need to be brushed weekly, while those with deluxe coats will need attention on a daily basis. Clipping and trimming nails is rarely pleasant for a dog but is important since dirt and rubbish can amass between the paws and even harm your pet. Most dogs need their nails trimmed once in two months.

Once a dog gets to enjoy his bathing session, he will think of it as playtime and splash water all over your bathroom or take a swig at you if you try to hold it still. When bathing your dog focus its attention by giving it a toy to play with.

Talking to your veterinarian or professional groomer is all it takes to get the best grooming instructions for keeping your pet happy and fit forever.
