Article Side

Get your Business Certified by SBA by Steven Brown

Article published on May 18th 2012 | Business

If you reside to the United States you must have already heard about the small business certification programs conducted by the federal government to support and improve the small business standard of the country. Now you must be thinking that selling to government is not your cup of tea, whilst the fact is you need no prior experience or sound market exposure to get the federal leads. All you need is the quality in what you are selling.

Apart from that, there is a mandate rule that the federal government follows is around 25% of the total business expense should be made on the small business companies especially those are owned and operated by the minority group of individuals. So, being socially or economically disadvantaged is no more a restraint for the prospective business veterans. Federal business supports are all there to help your business growth. Well, before you get ahead with the minority business certification application process, letâ€™s know about the programs available and the way they can actually add value to your business revenue. SBA, the Small Business Administration is an independent federal agency that conducts the small business development certification programs to help the small businesses get a way to the federal market.

Now it is not a cakewalk for the small business companies to go through the certification process. Huge eligibility criteria are there to measure the business potential to ensure that the federal purchasers get the best market deal. Now, in most cases the small business veterans simply end up being rejected by the authority, which is mainly because they fail to meet the eligibility issues. Apart from going through the 8a certification application process an applicant has to come up with a formal business plan and that is the place where they get an opportunity to talk about their business eminence. You must therefore come up with a comprehensive business plan capable enough to convince your targeted contracting officers.

Well, not only the minority group of individuals but the service disabled veteran owned small business (SDVOSB) companies are also eligible for the grants offered by the SBA. However, such certification programs are popularly known as the SDVOSB certification and comparatively are easier to achieve. There is no certain parameter to determine the level of disability of an applicant and so this certification is also known as the self certification program. Veterans who were once into the US military and lost their job due to accidental disability or the reasons other that disability are eligible for the certification program.

So, it is advisable that you evaluate your business status first before opting for a certification program. Being a small business company in case you find it difficult to meet the eligibility issues or understand the program details, you can always go for hiring the professional Minority certification consultants who are mostly available online. As a wide ranging industry is covered by the certification program, you have the opportunities to get your fortune clicked. So, what are you waiting for? This is just the right time to get your business established to the most competitive federal market place. Get online now and find the best business certification consultant available within your reach. Direct referrals are always good to go with, but if you donâ€™t get any, visit the online directories or the forum pages discussing about the business support certification programs.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/business-articles/get-your-business-certified-by-sba.htm - Article Side

Steven Brown - About Author:
Steven Brown is a professional internet marketer. To know about the a minority certification sba 8a, a selling to the government or a disabled veteran owned business visit ez8a.com

Article Keywords:
8a certification, sba 8a, minority business certification, government marketing, sdvosb

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!