There is a variety of cricket field gears required to play the thriving game of cricket. The gear used must accomplish specific needs in consideration of the rules and set of laws of the game of cricket. When preparing the cricket ground gear the primary few essential items needed are the boundary line, cricket sight screens and tarpaulin covers. The boundary has a couple of main uses within cricket. Initially the boundary is just used to mark the circumference of the playing field, marking the region of play. Also, the boundary is utilized for the runs scoring within the sport of cricket, where four runs are given when the ball crosses the boundary, but six runs are allotted when the ball lands over the boundary.

The cricket sight screens are another very important cricket field gears that have to be set up prior to starting the game of cricket. The use of a cricket sight screen is to help in the better visibility of the ball. The cricket sight screens are set up at both ends of the cricket field opposite to the wickets, the shade of the screens enables seeing the ball simpler for the batsman. The sight screen even aids in blocking out any interruptions through illumination or else that the bowler or batsman might have, which in sequence help in improving players's™ performance.

The tarpaulin covers are made from polythene or fiber and the chief use of the tarpaulin covers is to function as a shielding stuff. It supplies a good shield from rainwater, dirt hail and heavy winds. All these things might affect the cricket pitch which might make it unfit for playing. Thus, the tarpaulin covers are used to protect the pitch from the bad weather and other things which deteriorate the pitch. If the pitch has even a little bit of moisture, it cannot be used for playing.
