

Article Side

The services provided by a Skills Development Facilitator by James Blee

Article published on July 16th 2012 | Business

A skills development facilitator will offer SETA training for people of all ages and all abilities. SETA which stands for sector education and training is an initiative that has been set up by the South African government to help people who want to and need to learn new skills. These may be skills to help people gain employment, to further their education or workplace skills to develop employee's potential. Many businesses are keen to use the services of a professional skills development facilitator to help develop their workforce and they can provide SETA accreditation for companies who want to offer recognised SETA training for their employees. SETA accreditation is available for every industry and occupation in South Africa and is something that any business can benefit from investing time in.

A skills development facilitator will offer a wide range of services to both companies and individuals and they will aim to empower employees by working on skills development that will help them to excel in their career. If companies want to gain SETA accreditation then they can do this with the help of a professional skills development facilitator who can facilitate training programmes, help develop training manuals, qualifications of assessors, curriculum development, leader management services, and help with registering training providers with the relevant SETA. Using a skills development facilitator to help with SETA accreditation will help make the whole process hassle free and simple for the business involved.

As well as SETA accreditation assistance a skills development facilitator can also carry out skills development workshops, develop customised training and development packages for businesses conduct assessments to identify training needs and develop workplace skills plans in line with SETA accreditation. A skills development facilitator may also provide health and safety training, human resource management, employment equity services, auditing and strategic management services for businesses who require this.

Article Source:

<http://www.articleside.com/business-articles/the-services-provided-by-a-skills-development-facilitator.htm> - Article Side

James Blee - About Author:

Cresco-con.co.za is a market leading specialist when it comes to top notch, reliable a skills development facilitator solutions and our client care is outstanding. a SETA accreditation does not get better than this.

Article Keywords:

skills development facilitator, SETA accreditation