Tips on How to Maintain Your Gold Locket by Elissa Joyce

Article published on December 19th 2011 | Business

You should never neglect to take care of your gleaming locket made of gold. The truth is with maintenance techniques and adhering to good maintenance tips, you should be able to preserve your locket for generations to come. While keeping your locket nice and clean is not a difficult task, it may require a little consistency on your part.

Think about it, what good is it, or how shinny would your locket appear if you choose to clean it once every 10 years? Not very great at all, to keep that shinny and attractive appearance you will need to consistent in what you do. Here are a few tips that should help you to preserve the pristine condition of your locket:

Keep Locket Pendant Away from Water â€“ If you are interested in maintaining you lovely heart locket, you should keep it clear of water. So, if you are going to have a shower or a bath, it is highly recommended that you remove your locket. Even if you are going to wash your car, donâ€™t forget to remove your locket.

The thing is, lockets made of precious stones will react negatively to chlorine water. The water will settle on the precious metal and ultimately cause corrosion. Therefore, even when you are going to engage in physical activities that will cause you to sweat, it is advised that you remove the pendant until you are finished. In most cases, water and sweat will darken the color of the pendant, and in some cases reduce the value and appearance of the pendant.

When Cleaning us Soft Toothbrush with Mild Soap â€“ Instead of using toothpaste and a rough toothbrush to clean your old pendant locket, you should try using a very soft toothbrush and mild soap water. When using toothpaste and a firm toothbrush, you stand the chance of scratching the surface of the locket.

Store Separate from Other Jewelry â€“ Donâ€™t store your locket with all the other jewelry in your possession. Instead, store it in a separate place. This is mainly because when jewelry is stored alongside your locket, it is more likely that the other stones will scratch at the locket due to unwanted and unintentional friction.

Perform Frequent and Constant Inspections â€“ By inspecting your locket through a magnifying glass on a regular basis, you may discover cracking, discoloration or stones becoming loosed. The sooner you identify the problems, the better and cheaper it is to get it resolved.

Get Professional Help - Some owners of a gorgeous heart locket refuse to take their jewelry for professional inspection. However, taking your locket to a professional and trusted jewelry can only do you good. The jewelry expert will be better equipped to clean your locket to perfection. They have the necessary equipments like a ultrasonic machine and cleaning chemical which ultimately guarantees the best clean possible.

So, try not to treat your locket made of gold lightly. In fact, you should exercise proper care and maintenance to preserve the value of the locket. Jewelry, if well taken care of can last you for ages and years to come giving you the opportunity to pass it from one generation to the next with the same shine, and attractiveness that captured your attention.

Article Source:

http://www.articleside.com/business-articles/tips-on-how-to-maintain-your-gold-locket.htm - Article Side

Elissa Joyce - About Author:
For further information about a Gold Locket and maintenance, you should contact us visit Heartsmith.com

Article Keywords:
locket necklace, heart locket, Gold locket

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!