Facebook has become the craze and people are seen chatting, enjoying, poking each other at the amazing social networking site. Through this amazing site, you cannot just stay connected with your near and dear ones but even share your feelings and emotions. If you are sad, you can post a status and see the number of replies coming in to share your sorrow.

At the same time, you can upload some funny Facebook statuses and make your friends and others happy. While you can choose to add some jokes or one-liners, it is believed that people like the funny statuses more when they are related to your life.

When you add these sorts of funny statuses, people like them and so they comment on the updates instantly. This way, you can keep the friends and acquaintances in your friend list updated about your funny moods and feelings.

More so, the funny statuses attract the friends towards your account and so you keep in contact with them. These statuses in fact make the people wish to visit your account from time to time to check out the latest updates and statuses posted by you. Even more, people eagerly wait for what you will be saying next in your upcoming status update.

It is great to note that Facebook is really huge and is growing with each passing day. While you can use some applications to make your statuses funny, there are various jokes and images on the net that you can upload as your next status and make others feel hilarious and joyous.

You can even choose to add some funny quotes taken from the Internet or make some on your own in order to make others feel happy and elated. The best part about Facebook is that it helps you to tag your friends as well in the updated status. For example, if a particular status is targeted or is meant for some specific group of friends, you can easily tag the same with the bunch of people. This way, the friends will be able to know what you are saying to them and this may start a funny, interesting and exciting conversation between you and the friends you have tagged in.

So, the next time you feel like updating some new status on your Facebook account, just go online and check out the various options available. There is a myriad of options that will help you to have funny and hilarious statuses to be put up on your Facebook page.

There are times when your Facebook account may seem to become dull and boring with no activities performed. At such times, it is great to update or post a funny status and see people commenting in huge numbers.

Facebook funny statuses are popular all over and are used by almost every Facebook account holder. If you have not tried this before, just get set go and update a funny quote or status now. You will surely enjoy this move. Updating the funny statuses on Facebook can definitely also help you in getting more notifications into your account!
