World Schools in Delhi by

Article published on May 8th 2012 | Business

A school has the major role to teach the students the academic and extra curricular activities in a well elaborated manner, So that each student can be able to learn the curriculum easily. Some schools are merely using the chalk and talk in delivering the lesson plans to their students. Where as some modern or professionally designed schools are also aroused in the capital with a single motive to provide the world class teaching aids to the students that makes a student to understand, analyze, and apply knowledge in the best ways.

A world school or an international school tends to offer all those services to your students:-

1-An atmosphere where students and staff come from a mix of cultures and societies to learn and teach a syllabus which is designed to represent a universal perspective.

2-Most International world schools in Delhi offer a combination of the ICSE, IGCSE and the IB pattern. The first two are evolving from the Cambridge University system, while the IB system of teaching learning methodology evolved in 1968 in Switzerland to aid the children of diplomats.

3-Choosing the International Baccalaureate Programs (IBOâ€™s) states that, â€œThese programs inspire students across the world to become more active, concerned and a lifelong learner who accepts other people opinions with their own differences of views on various issues. Various world schools in Delhi are expected to practice this ideology to make the philosophy of an international education worthwhile.

4-The IB program consists of three different stages. The Primary Year Program (PYP) for children aged 3 to 11, the Middle Year Program (MYP) for students between the age of 11 and 17 and the Diploma Program (DP) which is equivalent to the 11th and 12th year for study in India and Delhi.

5-Assessment too in the IB program is based on problem solving activities, investigating facts in a current context, debates, experiments, analysis and reflection. The topics can taken out form the school curriculums on which the students has to work for their assignments.

6-This type of assignment creating process makes students more creative, enthusiastic and zealous to work hard and creatively. Students have to show the records of participating in the arts, social service and sport while submitting the assignments. This system helps students to develop their understanding skills rather than memorizing. The preferred syllabus in India for entry into the IB is the IGCSE.

7-Such type of schools education is always very helpful for the students to cope well in their higher studies. In universities also, students will find same type of study curriculum.

The agenda of the IB education system revels that learning is not concern something to textbooks only. Infect, it is an interpretation process in which a students has to acquire the maximum knowledge by themselves. They can watch and learn things with various modern study aids. And we know that practice makes a man perfect.
