Clothes are meant to cover your body and protect it from the heat and cold. But this is not all that can classify various types of outfits. An outfit is designed with a purpose and utility. You do not wear your office apparels in a friend's party too. Difference in dresses is imperative to take place because without this difference life would turn monotonous.

Among the diverse range of clothes, full body suits stand distinctively. Basically these suits are used for swimming and seen in various cuts and styles to provide comfort to different swimmers. Full body suits are usually used for adventurous sports; that is why they weigh very low too. Such suits cover the whole of body of a person, if the weight of this kind of outfits is more, then it can cause discomfort to the swimmer other sports person.

Performers from the field of gymnastics, circus, and swimming wear full body Lycra suits. Lycra is the material that gives lightness to an outfit. It does not cause any sort of inconvenience while indulging in a water based activity. Water sports like water polo, diving, water skiing etc need high level of activeness and the comfort that a Lycra suit provides is matchless.

Swimsuits made of Lycra are also picked up to wear for any occasion where, the purpose is to display the body. You can find models wearing skin touch Lycra suits for a glamour show, photography or any beauty pageant.

While engaging in an adventurous sport, your body needs to feel the comfort so that you can actively use every part of your body if any accidental move takes place. Just imagine that you are climbing a hill and the buttons of your waist belt get stuck somewhere. To minimize the possibility of such situations adventure lovers prefer to wear full body Lycra suits. By doing so, they set themselves free from the hardships of adventure.

There are other sports except swimming which need an equal amount of energy and agility. Other than swimming people also prefer full body suits for sun bathing. It gives them the pleasure of sun and saves from the harmful effects like sun burn. Many companies manufacture some full body Lycra suits that are protected from the UV rays of sun.

People who use full body cover for scuba diving and wakeboarding also find it attractive to wear in regular life. Such fully covered outfits have become the trendiest dress for fancy dress and theme parties. Folks add accessories to it for making it look different yet attractive. Few of them cover their whole face and others leave the face portion free. These Lycra suits come in various colors that appeal tremendously. Various contemporary dance form choreographers use the costumes that cover the full body to put their dance theme forward. The blend of color and comfort of such outfits is making them a rage among new generation.
