Balearic Islands â€“ the Mediterranean Paradise by James Purefoy

Article published on July 3rd 2012 | Destinations

Spain is blessed with numerous islands which could be the reason why it is one of the most popular tourist destinations in the world. The islands are divided into Canary and Balearic Islands with each being made up of a group of islands. The many islands open great opportunities to tourists coming here to enjoy the sun and sand they have to offer.

The Balearic Islands are wonderful and are referred to as the paradise of the Mediterranean. This group is further divided into the northern islands Gimnesias composed of Canbrera, Menorca and Mallorca and the South west groups Pitiusas which has the Formentera and Ibiza Islands. Regardless of which part you choose to be, you can be sure that the islands will have something fun and unique to offer you during the holiday.

The climate on the Balearic Islands is excellent especially considering that they experience 300 sunny days through the year which means that they are a great place to visit during any season of the year. The beaches are wonderful and so is the rich culture that you will find in the islands. The inhabitants of the islands ate most hospitable and will make it easy for you to enjoy your holiday on the islands. The airport in Palma de Mallorca is the most crowded within the islands and in the whole of Spain as tourists get to the Balearic Islands through here.

With the many wonderful things that the Balearic group of islands have to offer, many tourists have had to come back over and over again to explore and enjoy all there is to these islands. It is therefore expected that the touristm flocking in these islands is something that is not just about to end as they become more and more popular among tourists from all regions of the world. There are some who even end up making the islands their homes after their exciting holidays here.

You will be most amazed by the fact that each of these islands has a unique and strong personality to it and they therefore offer unique holiday experiences. It is best to try spending some time in each during your holiday for maximum enjoyment. A holiday in the Balearic Islands can be one of the best holidays you have ever had in terms of fun, comfort and relaxation which everybody is looking to get from a holiday.
