Kullu-Manali are the most popular choice hill stations in the northern India and has been welcoming thousands of tourists every year with trends showing a significant annual growth. The cool weather coupled with spellbound scenic beauty makes it a heaven for those especially languishing in the hotter parts of India and elsewhere.

Kullu offers good attractions including the Bijli Mahadev Temple that is dedicated to Lord Shiva and huge Sultanpur Palace where several age old miniature paintings are housed and the colonial monument is a corneal treat for sure. The original palace has been reconstructed after an earthquake caused damage to the original structure. Then there is Pandoh Dam, the Great Himalayan National Park and Tabo Monstery which are some other must see attractions in Kullu. But for a more fulfilling stay and holiday take a hike to Manali from Kullu.

Manali has a lot to offer for a typical traveler and holidaying soul. There are quite a few sightseeing attractions and the two hill stations are renowned for exciting sports activities including skiing, tobogganing, hiking, mountaineering, and paragliding. The state of Himachal Pradesh is blessed to have snow-fed rivers, and River Beas, Ravi and Chamba offer huge scope for several water sports one that is mostly done is whitewater rafting.

Shamshi and Aut sub-rivers of the Beas offer scope for river running expeditions and kayaking due to exciting rapids of the waters on about 15-20 km stretch, and many do happen during the season. Valley of Solang Nallah is skiing friendly and the snowy slopes that are here draw huge crowds and skiers from across India and world over. If there is any major skiing event in India it has to be the Solang.

Then if you are one that pursue love for nature and are in the pursuit exploring the beauties it beholds Kullu Manali are the places that suit your taste offering scope to venture beyond the blue ranges on the horizon and to discover new valleys, forests, rivers and high mountains. The quest of mountain lover is for the freedom of the hills, to be at home in the high wilderness, with no barriers he cannot pass, no danger he cannot avoid with due caution and proper knowledge. This is the essence of enjoyment sought by the trekker and the climber.
