Tourist Attractions in Cabrera by Frederick Pollard

Article published on July 2nd 2012 | Destinations

The untouched paradise that is Cabrera is simply breathtaking. It is a virgin island yet to be spoiled and is one of the best places that you can choose to spend a holiday or vacation in. Even though not many activities can be enjoyed from here since it is a natural preserve, there are still lots of things to be enjoyed by those who spend some time in the paradise.

The Natural Port: it is probably where you will drop you anchor. Porto de Cabrera is on the north eastern side of the island and has interesting things to see. Cape Llebeig is the most remarkable and has a lighthouse which is what definitely tells that you have reached the port. This natural port is one of the places you can never miss out on while on the island.

The Fortress: it is near the port and dates back to the 14th century. It served originally as a point of defense from pirate attacks which were very common here. French soldiers were imprisoned here during the anti Napoleon war. You will even find a monument which tells and reminds more about the events that took place here. There is also a museum from where you can learn much about the Cabrera history.

The Coast: the coastal region of Cabrera is quite untouched and the waters are crystalline. You might have the chance to enjoy the waters and the friendly climate while on the coastal region. A bath and probably enjoying a snack will be a great thing to do while here.

The Bay: Cala Gandulf is one of the bays that you will find on the island. Is has a very popular and famed area which is the Cova Blava. The blue cave, as the name means, has very unique and dazzling light reflections within its interior parts. You will be amazed by the wonders of nature. It is truly a gem of the island.

As much as Cabrera Island is a natural preserve, there is a good portion of the island that can still be enjoyed by tourists coming here. It is mostly natural and virgin hence a great place for people or visitors who love enjoying nature. The many bird and plant species found within the island is a major attraction for those who love the best of nature. It is truly a paradise that awaits to be enjoyed and explored.
