Cartagena comes second in size in the region of Murcia and is therefore a very interesting city attracting thousands of tourists from all over the world. It is Spainâ€™s most significant port with the port having great importance to the economy of the region and Spain as a whole. You will also find the biggest naval base here specifically on the Spanish coast of the Mediterranean.

Cartagena has lots of things for tourists to see and enjoy on choosing it as the ideal holiday destination. It is however also important to remember that it does not have any beaches and therefore those looking for some beach fun and activities should choose other destinations for their holiday or make plans to get to the La Manga coast which is not far from here to enjoy the wonderful beaches there during the holiday.

The lack of beaches in Cartagena does not however mean that it has nothing to offer. Some of the things you will find in this Murcia city include historical ruins, fortresses and a great bunch of churches. There are also palaces and museums within the city and each of the features has amazing collections. It is a monumental city and is most ideal for individuals interested in learning a great deal of the history behind the city and the region as well.

The ancient buildings here come in perfect harmony with the modern ones and you will be amazed at how beautiful they make the city look. With the help of a guide during your holiday or tour of Cartagena, you will be sure to have the best of the city making your tour most memorable and interesting. There are lots of activities and facilities within these city designed to offer maximum comfort and enjoyment for all hence you will never miss to find something that is ideal for the kind of time you are looking forward to spending while here.

The weather in Cartagena and Murcia region in general is friendly but there is also an importance of making sure that you are well aware of the current conditions before embarking on your visit. It is most definite that you will only get to enjoy the city when the climatic conditions are friendly and bearable. It helps to have a map of the city in case you have the need to get around it on your own.
