Article published on January 19th 2012 | Destinations

Menorca is a small island that has very distinct feature, which makes this island a major tourist attraction. It has a very rich history and the culture is also truly interesting. The tourists, who come down to Menorca, find this place truly charming because of the long beaches and bays. Being an island, the beaches are one of the main places of visits and you will love walking through its golden sand that will keep you relaxed. This is the right place to rejuvenate you after days of hard and tiring work. Take some days off and spend your vacation at one of the resorts at Menorca.

South Menorca has a number of beaches that has pine trees adding charm to the already exotic location. You could start off your excursion from Villacarlos, which is an enchanting village. There you could find lonely bays, of which Calla Llonga is the most popular one. You should also visit the national park which is situated just 6 kms from the bay and you will love the beautiful garden amidst which there is a silent lake with glistening water. You could also spend a day at yet another island, which is very small but worth visiting for its white sand beach.

As you head towards south, you will come across Sant Luis, which is also a village that was once upon a time ruled by the French. The beaches here are neat and the blue sea will make you forget all your worries. Just take a walk along the Punta Prima beach and enjoy the mystic view of the Cala d'es Rafalet .

To get to know the traditional architectural features of the island, you could walk down the small place called Torret. And do not miss the chance to get a glance of the colony of the hippies at the Calas Covas. You will be fascinated with their life style as they still depend on the transistors as their only mode of communication. They dwell in caves and are still in the olden era of living. Another place called Alaior is known for its shoe production. You could get the view of manor kind of houses that are of the pre- historic period.

As you travel towards the north you will reach Fornells, which is a fishing port. There is also a beautiful beach, which is a perfect place to spend some time in the evening. Just close to the fishing port you will also find the cave Cueva Na Pulida, which contains stalagmites.

Relax and rejuvenate at Menorca this vacation.
