

Article published on December 29th 2011 | Education

Homework is significant because it is the intersection between home and school. It helps in establishing the habit of hard working regularly. Assignments when completed successfully, helps the children in all over development of their mind. Parents take it seriously but they are troubled because their kids don't do the homework sincerely. They show lack of enthusiasm for doing their homework. It's obvious that homework helps parents in learning about children's education and makes communication strong both with their children and the schools. Moreover, it encourages the life with full of love of learning. However, homework should be given in proper amount and qualitative that is useful for the student. All the schools are following the concept of giving proper amount of homework. Parents play a big role in making the children do their homework so they should keep aside a specific time for the child's daily routine. It will prepare them for the exam and it's not that learning take place only in class but it can happen anywhere in peace environment.

When the children grow big, the amount of homework and the time engaged in doing the task also increases. For teachers and administrators, homework is a cost effective way to provide additional instruction in practice. Still, we know that by completing homework and turning it in on time, students improve academically and learn important lessons about discipline, responsibility, and communication. After school, the child will get something valuable to do through homework and can maintain a positive balance. It utilizes the leisure time of the children, which otherwise would have been wasted. Homework can have many benefits for young children. It improves their memory power and develops study skills which will be worth even after they leave the school. It will also teach the children how to deal with time.

As parents you should check your kid's homework, provide support and guidance but make sure that you do not do their homework on their behalf. It will have a bad effect on the child's mind and they will always expect from the parents to do their homework. When the assignments are unclear to the parents, they can directly talk to the concerned teachers and get all the doubts clear. Keep all supplies students may need at home. It also may be helpful to introduce kids to the many resources available that can make homework easier. The library and internet are also helpful for researching for reports and projects. Factors like the subject taught and what day of the school week it is will be things to take into consideration while planning out homework lessons. Educators can gain advice and guidance from professionals and fellow teachers on what are the best tactics for giving out after-school assignments. Homework makes the job of the teachers as well as the students easy. Teachers get the idea about the sincerity of the child and the students get benefitted from revising the same chapter which is taught in the school. Most importantly, parents should provide constant support and encouragement. Demonstrate to children how important homework is by taking an interest and guiding them.

Article Source:

<http://www.articleside.com/education-articles/homework-sharp-the-knowledge-of-the-child.htm> - Article Side

Osa Webmasterone - About Author:

This article has been posted by a school guide of OnlineSchoolAdmissions.Com, who also provides free of cost counseling to parents on school admissions. A visit to the site lets parents know about the a Ryan International school patiala or a Seth anandram jaipuria school of their choice. They can also search for a Shree bharati as per their choice and fill up the school application forms online.

Article Keywords:

Ryan International school patiala , Seth anandram jaipuria school , Shree bharati

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!