

Article published on November 25th 2011 | Education

Organization is the key to success when it comes to literary essay writing, not every student know this secret, as a result they get real bad grades in their essay exams. Writing a literary essay won't be difficult if you follow the procedure given below:

There are three major components of a literary analysis essay and they are:

1- Introduction

2- Body

3- Conclusion

How to write the introduction part of the literary essays?

The introduction introduces the subject matter of the essay, it should comprise of two major parts:

1- The subject: The subject will depict the main objective of writing the literary essay

2- The attitude: the thing which you would be discussing about the subject

You can also call it as a thesis statement of the essay; make sure the introduction part is as effective as the rest of the essay because it begins the essay. Therefore, it can be biggest tool for engaging the reader in the essay.

How to write the body of the literary essay?

The body will discuss everything that was illustrated in the introduction of the literary essay; the body of the essay should be divided into several paragraphs providing at least two points in order to support the thesis statement. Each of the paragraphs should be starting with a strong opening statement that is called as the topic sentence.

Now, let's have a look in to how to develop a topic sentence?

A topic sentence that is often called as focus sentence is usually stated in the beginning of a paragraph, it connects itself with two major aspects of the literary essays, first; it links back to the thesis statement of the essay, secondly; it works as a signpost for the argumentation of the literary essays.

How to construct the body paragraphs?

At first, you will be describing all the literary terms that you incorporated in the topic sentence of the literary essays. Once you are done with this, you may proceed by discussing the major points in the literary essays. Use quoting technique to effectively provide the references from the play; you can also use summarizing technique as well.

How to write the conclusion?

There are two major elements of a conclusion for literary essays,

First, you have to restate the thesis statement so as to remind the reader of the claim you made in the beginning of the essay. Remember, not to copy and paste the entire thesis statement, instead paraphrase it and then incorporate it.

Secondly, you will have to tell the readers why you were right about your claim in the essay and the importance of the interpretation you did.

Hence, you are now completed with your literary essays; the preceding guideline is not a universal standard rather it was given you to provide a roadmap that you can follow to write your literary essays easily. Final words of advice are to not to analyze a book that is quite common and used for literary essay writing thousands of time.

Article Source:

<http://www.articleside.com/education-articles/how-to-write-literary-essay.htm> - Article Side

Samcollier - About Author:

Sam Collier is a senior research writer and provide help for a A literary essay and a How to write literary essay. Feel free to contact for any sort of help in this regard.

Article Keywords:

Literary essay, Literary analysis essay, Literary essays , A literary essay, How to write literary essay

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!