

Article published on February 21st 2012 | Education

The task of research paper writing becomes complex for students who don't create an outline to carry out their work efficiently. Therefore, students should follow an outline in order to accomplish their task of research paper writing successfully.

Here is a sample outline for students who face difficulties in research paper writing that will not only aid them how to write a research paper but also guide them how to research for paper:

Sample Outline:

Title Page: In the title page, you will be giving a brief summary to your reader about the topic of study. The title should be created in a way that your reader can guess what is in the paper for him/her. A title should be concise yet interesting for reader to get the reader engaged with the paper from the start.

Abstract: Abstract is the short summary of research work that you would have carried out for your research. It should include your research paper objectives, methodology, results and conclusion in brief.

Section I - Introduction: In introductory section of your research, you will tell the reader about the aims and objectives of your research. It will include the details on how you will accomplish your aims and objectives of research in relation to your research objectives or questions.

Section II – Literature Review: In this section, you will be required to review the work of scholars concerning your research topics. Literature review will provide you sufficient guidelines on how to research for paper.

Section III – Research Methodology: In this section, you will describe your readers about the methodology that you will be adopting for your research. Selection of research methodology will depend on the objectives or questions of your research.

Section IV – Presentation of Results: In this section, you will provide the obtained results in tables, charts or graphs on basis of data analysis which you would have performed after gathering data with your applied methodologies.

Section V – Conclusion & Future Recommendations: In this section, you will interpret the significance of results obtained and recommend steps for future which can improve the obtained results.

References: At the end of your research paper, you will be providing references on basis of the required citation style.

Following this sample outline you can write research paper on any subject with quite ease.

Article Source:

<http://www.articleside.com/education-articles/sample-outline-to-guide-you-on-how-to-write-a-research-paper.htm> - Article Side

Laura Tyler - About Author:

Laura Tyler is a senior research writer and provide help for a how to research for paper and a write research paper. Feel free to contact for any sort of help in this regard.

Article Keywords:

how to research for paper, write research paper

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!