We as human beings always find some way or the other to put our adrenalin on rush to get some adventurous excitement in our life. I remember when we were kids the TV shows as 'GI JOE' and He Man the warrior series always fascinated us to hold those magnificent artillery and armor fighting the villains or enemies. With age some of us forgot but some carry forward their passion to serve the army of nations. Well there you don't handle the replica artillery but the original ones. That is also only after one is trained enough with replicated tactical guns and gears to go through a combat situation.

These replicated guns and war masks which once were used in tactical training of army cadets or cops are now available as combat gaming tools. One could feel the real adventure and thrill of actual war situations in these games. Earlier when these replicated war artillery came they were too artificial and more of plastic look but as the technology advanced designs gradually came up with more original designs.

These gears and guns are now known with brand they are produced from. One such brand is the airsoft guns which are rather high version of earlier replicated tactical guns or rifles. The range, cadre and category of airsoft catalogues are more defined artillery mechanics which can be used for both simulative and tactical training.

Assault rifle, submachine guns and MK4 pistols are some of the popular gears designs from airsoft. These gears are now coming with a 21st century additional periscope which has far more application areas than the traditional periscope. Some gears are with the highly successful pole camera system and which also incorporates thermal sensors, a color zoom and low light.

These days replicated weapon manufacturers are also finding the ways to design them with laser the ones we have usually have seen in some sci-fi movies as star wars. This would change the face of combat gaming. The design and advancements are not only limited to guns or pistols even the protective gears as armor and face mask .Airsoft has the best ones as iron face masks and tactical warrior masks.

So now if you think of combat gaming just don't satisfy your senses with digital game versions because now airsoft gets you the chance to dress yourself in warrior attire and fight the real war game. The battlefield is all ready for you.
