When you've lived with a complete set of teeth for years, losing at least one of them can be very irritating. Your appearance is the first thing which is at stake. Flashing a smile with missing teeth can mess up any photo or hamper possibilities for social interaction. Most importantly, your biting and chewing functions become afflicted. Thankfully, trusted Atlanta dentists can give you a long term solution--and these are dental implants. The said treatment requires the crafting and positioning of synthetic tooth replacements in the mouth, which appropriately become replacements for actual teeth.

There are two parts in dental implants: one is the screw, and the other is the false tooth. The screw is typically made of titanium, but it can be composed of other materials. Dentists favor titanium as it connects effectively with the teeth. It is placed in the jaw bone, while the false tooth is connected to the implant. In placing implants, the dentist administers local anesthesia for the patient's comfort.

There are different types of dental implants the dentist can serve you. The first is the subperiosteal implant, which is made for people who don't have enough bone width or depth to accommodate a root form or plate form implant. The second is the root form implant which is utilized if there is adequate bone depth and width. Root form implants are one of the widely used implants, and looks like a natural tooth root. Lastly, there's the plate form implant; its length and flatness help it become a great choice for patients whose jawbone is too narrow to undertake grafting.

Dental implants can help you avoid several dental problems that derive from neglecting dental hygiene. Such problems consist of congenital problems, gum disease, decay, and trauma. Moreover, dental implants look natural. They look so natural that you will forget you've lost a tooth. Consult a cosmetic dentist atlanta residents go to for more information.

It is crucial that you see your reliable cosmetic dentist Atlanta GA endorses to find out if you are a suitable candidate for implants. During your visit, your dentist will look at the depth and width of your jawbone. Oral exams will also be carried out to search for indications of any oral disease. Implantation may not be a great option if you have been subject to recent chemotherapy, smoke regularly, have uncontrolled diabetes, low sinuses, or bone marrow cancer.

Your respected cosmetic dentist in Atlanta may help you attain normal chewing and biting via safe and effective dental implantation. You will be assisted through the entire preimplantation, implantation, and postimplantation stages. Moreover, the dentist will make sure that you are happy with the procedure, so there's no reason to postpone the dental visit.
