There are two primary uses of photo blankets. One is to sleep on. This will usually occur when the blanket is bought for a kid instead of for an adult. Children will often appreciate the custom design that's been chosen for his or her blankets. Many adults would prefer to sleep with a regular blanket and comforter instead.

And the second usage of these blankets is to hang on a wall. This can be a very unique way to display a big size reproduction of either the whole family or a prominent member of the family. It is also a terrific way to honor members of the family that have died. When ordering custom blankets for the wall, make sure to measure the height and width of the wall area to make sure that there is enough room for the blanket.

The entire process of getting photo blankets is quite simple. The first thing to do would be to have a digital copy of the picture. If the picture is on a paper photograph, it will have to be scanned in via a computer scanner. When the image is in a computer file, it's going to be uploaded during the ordering process for the blanket.

Once the store receives the order, they are going to take a look at the image to ensure it doesn't violate any copyright. If you have a copyright issue, they will not accept the image without an authorization letter from the copyright holder. When the image has become cleared, the shop will create the blanket and then send it to the consumer. That is all there is to the entire process.

One of the limitations of photo blankets is it is not possible to use any photo. In particular, photos of famous people, logos, characters, and other things that may possess a copyright claim can't be used without a letter from the copyright holder. This effectively means that it's not possible to use a picture that's found on the Internet.

However, there are several photos which are not subject to copyright restriction. In particular, any photos taken by the customer with no copyright infringing objects may be used. Typically, this is the picture of a person or a picture of the entire family. That is when it is possible to use prepared photographs.

One other thing consider when shopping photo blankets is the material, specifically if it will be used for sleeping. Some of the materials that are offered from many vendors include fleece, wool, and furry fleece. Based on the preferences of the person who's going to be sleeping with it, it is important to select the right type of material for the blanket.

With regards to fleece, the image is printed on the blanket. With knitted and woven fabrics, it does not fade from repeated washing cycles. That may be an important consider when choosing the type of material for the blanket.
