How your work surroundings appear has a lot to do with how you ultimately perform. Colours, the decor, comfort, and surroundings, play a great role in motivating and de-motivating a person. It is important to feel good when at work to be able to produce great stuff. Therefore, it is the responsibility of the organization, and its owners, to provide their employees with a workspace that promotes productivity. Hence, in our series of office renovation articles, today we will focus on doing up the office work area.

Personalization is the key: The general perception about office work area is that it will have a uniform pattern of bland colours spread around in a similar fashion for all. However, times have changed. Today, offices are conceptualized and designed in a more detailed manner and therefore, colours are given great importance. As per colour science, bright colours lighten up moods and spread energy in the surroundings. Therefore, use bright colours like yellow, lime, sky blue and shades of pastel. These would exude a more personal appearance and your employees are just going to love it.

If you are worried that maintaining bright colours may prove tedious then we suggest you go for laminates wood in bright shades. The advantage of using laminates wood is that you can just easily rub off the dust and slurry that settles on the walls with a piece of cloth and keep the area appearing clean and shiny at all times.

Effective use of space: No one wants to work in an area that is clogged and suffocating. Neatness always appeals and promotes productivity. If you want your employees to work with free mind, it is important to give them the required space to move around freely. Bulky sharp-edged table and chairs, huge cupboards, low-lying chests etc. only make the space feel heavy. Therefore, we suggest you go for sturdy and trendy office furniture that save space and are durable at the same time.

You can try using laminate countertop instead of space-occupying tables. The advantage of using laminate countertop over traditional office furniture is that you save space, enhance the office appearance and the covered storage area of laminate countertops will make your office appear tidy.

Methodical storage: Files, folders, papers, old books, etc. are an integral part of every office and it is important to store such things more methodically so that when the time comes, one can fetch them out even from piles and piles of folders without much difficulty. To cater to this need, one needs a more methodical storage space in the office work area that does not disturb the regular workflow.

We suggest you choose from the range of store fixtures available in the market. Store fixtures vary from cupboards, wall chests, drawers, countertops, modular tables and many more. With the help of these varieties of store fixtures, you can not only save space around the work area but also promote tidiness.

The tips and suggestions made above are very basic in nature that will not only be cost effective but also extremely durable. You can try them at your office and see the results. For more on Office renovation, keep tracking this space.
