Site Plans are often needed when you are planning building work by Julia Roger

Article published on March 21st 2012 | Home Improvement

What exactly are site plans?

Site plans are basically planning maps that show your property and the area around it. These have to be very accurate and up to date so that your planning authority can make a sound judgement on whether the building work can go ahead or not. As well as showing an ordinance survey map it may also be accompanied by an aerial photo of the same area. The whole country is very well mapped and all of the maps can be downloaded digitally in a format that is easily printed off on most good printers. Site plans can also be helpful to you as well as the planning authority so you can see the area around your property.

How do you go about getting site plans?

Getting site plans when you are applying for planning permission for building work is essential when making your application to the authorities. You may think that getting the right sort of planning maps for the application would be difficult, but this could not be further from the truth. There are a few very good companies who can send you the maps digitally by simply applying online. After a simple process and a fee they can send you the site plans digitally in under half an hour if you go to a good company.

Where is a good place to go to for site plans?

There are a few good companies that you can go to for site plans. You want to make sure that you go to one who is partnered with the Ordinance Survey so that you get the most accurate and up to date map possible. One company that stands out above its competitors and is worth a special mention is called Planning required. They have an excellent website at www.planningrequired.com. On the website you are able to easily download your site plans and you should receive them within twenty minutes by email. They have very competitive prices and should be the first place that you try if you do need site plans.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/home-improvement-articles/site-plans-are-often-needed-when-you-are-planning-building-work.htm - Article Side

Julia Roger - About Author:
At planningrequired.com all of our bespoke a site plans are so intricate and detailed and our client care is second to none. We will furnish you with the most accurate, exacting a location plans at affordable rates.

Article Keywords:
site plans,location plans

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!