If you want to give your home a new look without changing the structure much and much of an expense then adding a cupola can change the look totally. Today these cupolas are just like ornaments for your house and they give your home a traditional and interesting look. Cupolas are also great in providing ventilation system in your home and removing the odor and mildew effectively. In other words it makes your home more durable. The size of cupolas can vary and so does the material. Many people today prefer vinyl cupolas to wooden ones because of various benefits.

1. Vinyl is a material which can resist the weather better than wood. Wood gets drenched in the rain and can get leakage for the same. Though this is the material used traditionally, the benefits are limited.

2. These are more durable compared to wood. Cupola is exposed to all kinds of weather and that is why it is important it to be durable. As vinyl is resistant to weather it is more durable and the show also stays for long. At it is situated on the top of the house it is not easy to replace it and that is the reason why people prefer it.

3. As we are living in modern houses today the look of vinyl will be matching more with the exterior of the home. Though in some cases wood matches better it is vinyl that ruling the market now.

4. Vinyl cupolas are easy to clean and maintain. It generally gets cleaned in rain water and you can also clean it very easily.

Vinyl and wood, both materials are used in the cupola today though historically the cupola was made of wood. In case of functional cupola it is important to choose the material that will help in its functionality.
