Yard Care Basics: Prior to and After a Typhoon by Elizaveta Kramer

Article published on June 1st 2012 | Home Improvement

If you're about to move into your new home in Boca Raton, Florida, one thing you have to realize is that, weather-wise, things can get insane. This is very crucial if you look after your lawn. While Boca Raton may seem perfect with its typical annual temp of 75 degrees, don't let its climate let your guard down.

Like the rest of Florida, Boca Raton gets its share of hurricanes from around the beginning of June to the end of November. Boca Raton residents haven't forgotten Hurricane Wilma when it struck in 2005. With that said, it is necessary to find out what to do with your yard prior to and after a tropical storm strikes since they will happen.

Before

As the saying goes, an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure. The best way to prevent your yard from taking a heavy beating is to care for it prior to the typhoon can be found in. While weather has actually always been unpredictable, years of weather forecasts and news reports give strategies when it is very likely to take place.

Mow your lawn just before the typhoon shows up. Unlike lawns with tall grass, those with short grass don't gather as much particles. If you have any type of trees, prune their branches and examine how securely they are planted to the ground. If possible, eliminate any sort of trees weakened by utility installation, insects, or ripe seniority along with any sort of item that isn't really very likely to be solidly planted on the ground.

After

One thing's for sure: Your lawn will be a mess after a tropical storm passes by. If you take steps to look after it before that takes place, then you can reduce the effect. You can even get a utility company to supply lawn service Boca Raton homeowners will appreciate.

Your initial step is to assess your lawn and trees, if any type of, for damage. Prune any sort of damaged trees, take out fallen branches, and let them heal on their own. One more aspect of lawn care Boca Raton locals generally do post-hurricane time is to get rid of any type of particles from the lawn such as nails and cracked shards of glass to minimize the option of anyone getting hurt.

If cleaning up your lawn after a typhoon is more than you can manage by yourself, you can find a professional service provider to deal with it for you. While it'll definitely cost you a bit of cash, you can count on the company's expertise to get your yard properly cleaned up.
