A bedroom is always a special room in a home; it's a place where you spend a great deal of your time. And, of lately, if you've been thinking of sprucing-up this room in your home, you need not to spend days; just follow these 3 steps and you're sure to bring a lot of change (that mesmerizes you) in a considerably lesser time period. So, here we go:

a) Lighting

You've to do it to believe it. A mere change in lighting can do a world of change in your interiors. Today, home-owners have innumerable options, in terms of lighting for their bedrooms. It's your time to go out in the market and get some really nice stuff for your bedroom.

Antique is the word making rounds in the industry. There're some good shops that are into antique lighting; see if any of the stuff makes sense to you.

b) Decorative Veneers

These are thin shavings obtained from lumber that are then glued to core panels (such as wood, and particleboard) for eye-soothing textures and patterns. Natural veneer products are just perfect when you want to decorate your space, without much of efforts and time.

Teak wood and walnut veneers are some good options to go for!

c) Painting

Paint your walls with your favourite colours and you're sure to see the change this brings to your space. Just make sure the paint on your walls complement the rest of the dÃ©cor inside. If you're not sure regarding the colours for the interior walls, you can ask for an expert advice. Friends can also help you out in this. But, remember, in the end, it's you who needs to say yes for which colours should be painted on the walls, and which should not.

Last but not the least, you should never compromise on quality; get all the products from reliable suppliers and/or manufacturers so that you always get value-for-money and never regret your purchase. If it's natural veneer that you're going for, then, Green Decowood from the house of Greenply is the best you can get, in the market. You can pick from the available three categories, which are Green Decowood Impressions, Green Decowood Specials and Green Decowood Standards. Each category has something special to offer; pick what fits your bedroom interior (and budget) the best. You can in fact log on to its website for more information.
