Retro furniture is all about innovative design, sleek lines, classic touch and stylish outlook. In fact, it has got everything that you want in furniture.

The designs of this type of furniture are actually inspired by the trends of 1950â€™s and 1960â€™s but it f beautifully in todayâ€™s stylish homes. It gives a very clean and unfussy look to your entire home which makes it very versatile. Retro furniture is the perfect choice for the elegant urban apartments and it is also suitable for the child-friendly family rooms.

The Inspiration of Post War Years

The post war years were featured with the sense of positivity to start everything afresh. The Retro furniture designs of wall units of 1950â€™s were used to depict the true sense of that era. The era was enriched with the enthusiastic optimism regarding the future. You will find simplicity and informality in the furniture designs of that era. The designs depict a departure from the traditionalism and ornate formality of pre-war era.

The Retro furniture shows the reflection of mid century period which is an exclusive combination of sensible comfort and sophisticated style.

Features:

The Neat Lines: The streamlined and sleek look is the hallmark of this type of furniture. The simple polished lines of the furniture items like wall units provide a feeling of visual space and airiness that exemplifies the contemporary aesthetic.

Minimum Ornamentation: You will not find overstuffed cushions, deeply draped fabrics, fringe, carved trim and other elaborated embellishments which are a part of traditional pre war decor. The Retro furniture designs focused on the concept of less-is-more where the idea is to enhance the design instead of beautification.

Experimenting with new Materials: New technologies and materials were introduced in 1950â€™s and 1960â€™s that brought a change in everyoneâ€™s life. The gleaming metal, fiberglass and plastics were beautifully sculpted and shaped into new forms which were not possible to get with the conventional material. There was a radical change in the use wood as there was an increased use of lighter tones instead of dark ones. Retro Furniture highlights the natural beauty of different kinds of wood like teak etc.

Asymmetry and Curves: The mid century designs of wall units were a combination of sensuous curves, asymmetrical shapes and sharp angles.

Bright and Clear Colors: The mid century designs used the non-traditional colors like pink, aqua, turquoise, sunny yellow and tangerine. The high energy colors including the black and white were used very commonly in almost everything like wallpapers and upholstery.

Practical Designs: The exclusive feature of mid century designs is the emphasis on the practical side i.e. usability. Furniture items like wall units fall among those household articles which are extensively and often roughly used, so the furniture designers of 1950â€™s seem to realize this idea and made designs which used to reflect taste and sophistication along with comfort and durability.

Retro furniture provides a blend of low maintenance and high performance which is suitable for the busy lifestyle of todayâ€™s world.

In short, mid-century designs were all about sophistication with simplicity and comfort. The furniture designs were speaking volumes of the essence of that era which was depicted through delicate look and classic style.
