How to Get Help from Mesothelioma Lawyers by Sutherland

Article published on March 23rd 2012 | Law

Mesothelioma is rare type of cancer that affects people who have been exposed to asbestos. Initial mesothelioma symptoms “ usually shortness of breath and fatigue “ often go ignored or misdiagnosed. Since initial mesothelioma symptoms are similar to the symptoms of other diseases, such as pneumonia, asthma, and the flu, it is difficult to correctly diagnose in its early stages. It is only at the point when more severe symptoms surface“ such as acute pain, wheezing, and coughing up blood “ that a proper diagnosis is typically made. At this point, however, the disease is often in its late stages and treatment becomes more difficult. For this reason, it is important for people who know they’ve been exposed to asbestos to seek immediate treatment for any mesothelioma symptoms. Mesothelioma has a very long latency period with symptoms sometimes taking decades to surface. So even if a person’s asbestos exposure occurred long ago, any mesothelioma symptoms should still be communicated to a doctor so that proper cancer screening can take place.

Most often mesothelioma patients were initially exposed to asbestos fibers at their place of employment. However, it is also possible to be exposed in homes, schools, and other buildings where asbestos-containing materials were used during construction. When disturbed “ such as during manufacturing, construction, remodeling, or demolition “ asbestos fibers can become airborne and inhaled. These fibers can then become lodged in the protective lining (the mesothelium) of our bodies’ internal organs, usually the lungs. The imbedded fibers can cause chronic inflammation of the tissue and eventually lead to the development of cancer.

Mesothelioma patients may wish to obtain assistance from mesothelioma lawyers, who can guide them through the process of seeking compensation from manufacturing companies. Mesothelioma lawyers are experienced in litigating against manufacturing companies who are responsible for asbestos exposure. Baron and Budd is one such law firm that has been engaged in asbestos litigation for thirty years. This premier law firm has litigated thousands of mesothelioma claims against big manufacturing companies. The law firm is staffed with a pool of dynamic and successful mesothelioma lawyers.
