What to Do if Charged with Assault in New Jersey by Hannah Zimmerman

Article published on April 25th 2012 | Law

Do you need a Monmouth County Assault Charges Attorney? You may if you have been charged with crimes associated with threatening or assaulting another person. These types of charges can lead to severe penalties if you are convicted on them. But as is true with most things in life, there are often two sides to any assault charge, and you have a right to have your side of the story presented in court. This is where having a Monmouth County Criminal Defense Attorney working on your behalf can prove to be very beneficial.

The reason it can be beneficial to work with a Monmouth County criminal defense attorney is because a conviction on these kinds of offenses often lead to serious penalties. If convicted, you could be facing jail time, high fees and court costs and lengthy probation sentences. The exact sentence one can experience will depend on several factors. To have a chance of successfully fighting these charges, it is better to have an experienced Monmouth County assault charges attorney working on your behalf.

Any of the following may result in charges: simple assault, aggravated assault, assault with a deadly weapon, assault by auto, aggravated assault on a police officer, terroristic threats, harassment, domestic violence or domestic assault, resisting arrest, criminal mischief, stalking, trespassing, or disorderly conduct. It is not uncommon for police to add charges when making an arrest which means a person may be facing any of the above along with other offenses such as DUI or public intoxication, to name just two. The more charges the police or prosecutor brings against you, the more you need to contact and work with an experienced criminal defense lawyer who practices in New Jersey. This is not the time to stand alone in court. Get the legal help that you deserve.

But simply being charged with assault or threatening does not automatically result in a conviction. That can only occur once your case has been heard in court. You do not have to plea guilty which some individuals will do once they become intimidated by the police or the prosecutors. Rather than plead guilty, consider hiring a Monmouth County criminal defense attorney as soon as possible. He or she will be able to examine your case and offer the best legal advice. Your Monmouth County assault charges attorney will also be able to examine all of the evidence and may be able to have some of it thrown out if that evidence was collected properly.

When you are looking to hire a Monmouth County criminal defense attorney, do some online research first. You want to work with legal firms that offer both experience and expertise in these types of cases. The information that you need in order to make a wise decision can often be located right on a law firm's website. It is well worth the time it takes to learn about a law firm before hiring one. Experience and expertise are crucial to providing the best defense for your case.
