The term outsourcing is generally used for contracting out business function to an external entity. The concept of outsourcing helps the firms to perform better in their core competencies. Outsourcing of project to an entity or company outside the country is generally referred as off shoring or offshore IT outsourcing. The major reason of outsourcing is that whole world is going through global economic crisis; while different businesses look for niches, in which they can invest and make money. As said earlier due to economic crisis the businesses are not sure whether that particular niche will prove beneficial or not. As starting business in any niche requires a lot of capital investment. To make their investment secure they opt for outsourcing option.

There are generally three types of IT outsourcing companies, which are technology services outsourcing, business process outsourcing and knowledge process outsourcing.

Low cost

The benefits achieved by companies by outsourcing a specific service or project is overall cost saving. As developing nations have low labor cost which helps the outsourcing companies to provide results on low costs. For businesses, in early period of a project it is very difficult to bear huge expenses. Outsourcing helps the companies by reducing their capital investment.

Increased efficiency

It is a proven fact that bulk actions can never be accomplished with limited helping hands. A company, who prefer to do all the tasks like research, development, distribution and marketing all by itself, ends up with higher expenses and inferior quality service. This technique ultimately results in unsatisfied customers. By outsourcing the overhead workload to outsourcing companies, help the company to increase its efficiency and providing high quality work to customers.

Ease labor costs

Besides the wage, training the newly hired employees also adds up company's expenditure. The worst part is that most of the newly hired employees flee away as soon as their training is completed and when they are ready to produce work. Outsourcing helps the company to focus on its core work while utilizing the human resource where needed most. Moreover, outsourcing also cuts costs on taxes, insurances and other employee related benefits and expenses.

Launching new projects right away

To launch a project, the first problem is to hire employees, make room for them in company, train newly hired employees and then start the project gradually. With business IT outsourcing, companies can start new projects right off the bat.

Focus on business essentials

A manager or owner should always be on the direction of company which helps to eliminate the risks involved. Focusing on other aspects such as government regulations, financial conditions and market competitions makes the business vulnerable. An outsourcing firm can easily take care of all these kinds of issues while business owner focus on major business aspects. Aside from these benefits, other benefits are improving quality of work, access to talent, enhancing the innovation, risk management and tax benefit.

Before getting overwhelmed by the advantages of outsourcing companies and hiring one to carry your tasks, you should first assess the outsourcing company. Check whether the company you are going to hire can carry on the projects efficiently. Is company prepared and have enough resources to manage the projects efficiently. Also, check that can you or that company easily cope up with time and cultural differences and barriers.

For instance, Velorium is one of the best IT outsourcing companies, which provides proven and low cost outsourcing options for small businesses. The company offers accounting, customer service, online marketing, data processing, data entry, copy writing, web development, process automation and graphics design services.
