Bluetooth is defined as being a short-range radio technology or a wireless technology aimed at simplifying communications among the Internet devices and between devices and the Internet. It also aims to simplify data synchronization between the Internet devices and other computers. Bluetooth products -- that is products using Bluetooth technology -- must be qualified and pass interoperability testing by the Bluetooth Special Interest Group prior to release.

Bluetooth's founding members include Ericsson, IBM, Intel, Nokia and Toshiba. Bluetooth is a standard wireless device for exchanging data between a mobile and a hands free set within a limited area by creating a personal area network. This is the most popular application of the Bluetooth but it's not the only one use of this device, there is so many application like - wireless networking between PC, can be used as wireless controller in gaming console etc. The main giants manufacturing these gadgets are Apple, Motorola, Samsung and Sony Ericsson.

The Nokia Bluetooth Headset offers a clean design and covers all the basic necessities a hands-free headset should cover for a price that can fit most pockets. The affordable price, however, has led Nokia to compromise a lot of functions, so if you are eager to taste all the latest heights and wonders that can be found on some modern, state-of-the-art, function-rich Bluetooth headsets, is definitely not your best choice. Nevertheless, this headset offers one or two good things.
