Article published on April 2nd 2012 | Pets

Pets are no less than an integral part of a modern family. They are loyal and friendly towards their masters and make excellent companions for any person. Older people living alone can live numerous years longer if they own a cat or a dog. Pets are a stress release, a friend, along with even a fitness partner in some circumstances.

So with these animals playing important part in our lives, we need to ensure that their needs are also taken care of, both in terms of attention as well as care. One of the essential things to be addressed is ensuring they receive sufficient care and attention. Both cats and dogs are friendly creatures and like to love, and be loved. You should spend at least a couple of hours a day straightforwardly involved with your animal, also if it is just patting your cat while you watch TV.

Looking after your animal's appearance is also extremely significant. Basic pet care such as grooming should be carried out at least once a week for dogs. With cats, they are always washing themselves each day so you do not need to worry as much with them. Though with cat care, a bath, or at least a soapy wash down, once a month will make sure their fur does not get filthy or matted.

With dog grooming, bath your dog with special shampoos that are designed particularly for them. These are created with special ingredients for the dogs, which look after skin conditions as well as fleas. Dogs with long hair should be groomed every day. Begin early in their life while they are puppies, so both they and you can get used to the routine.
