Birthdays are certainly special events to pay attention to and if you are a guy then they are all the more special and meaningful if you have a girlfriend, fiancée, or a wife! Many men each year are hurt in the battle of "You Forgot My Birthday!" and there are plenty of arguments to go around. If you have ever experienced the ravings of the woman that you love because her birthday somehow slipped your mind then you know the benefit of being prepared with a gift well in advance of that special date!

In addition to the dilemma of buying her a birthday gift, you may not even know what she wants! And if you are like most of the guys then you probably have a little bit of trouble picking up the birthday gift suggestions that the woman in your life calls "subtle hints." Nevertheless, picking out a birthday gift for the women of their heart is sometimes a little troubling and a little difficult for some men around the world. But even so, there are always certain gifts that your girlfriend, fiancée, lover, or wife will definitely love. Hope you remember how Bill managed the situations with simple gifts on Big Love TV series. I have recorded some interesting scenes from the show on my Dish TV recorder and used to watch it on when I find time.

Unless the female that you are buying gifts for does not have a romantic bone in her body then chances are that she will appreciate the two-dozen roses that you should be getting for her on her birthday. Along with the roses that you will be buying for her you should also pick out a small stuffed animal or other ornament to go along with it. These bouquets of flowers will usually allow you to write something in the small little card that they send, and that is exactly what you should do! Nothing says "I Love You, Honey" than a good, old-fashioned bouquet of flowers and a special surprise attachment to go along with it. A few poetic words will have a good response that you are expecting for, so make a little hunt on short poems if you could not write one for her on your own.

Giving her a new fragrance will make things look new. No, this is not meant to be a turn-off, but it is the truth that women virtually always love getting more perfumes for their birthday. If you know that she is already running low on the scent that she currently has then search and buy her two more bottles just like it. Perfume for a woman always makes a special gift and no one can go wrong with it. If your sweet heart loves to try something new (of course not about you), then think about giving her a brand new perfume preferably in pink to make the day end perfectly as you have planned.

Everyone loves to receive gift certificates on their birthday to their favorite store and this is another "winner" in the Gifts for Her category. Victoria's Secret and Bath & Body Works are just two of the stores that she will absolutely love to get a gift certificate for. As far as coupons goes, personalized coupons are also something romantic and sweet to do for her. Of course it takes a little creativity to come up with what the coupon will be for, but many women find that personalized coupons are a creative way to give a gift.

In conclusion, all of these birthday gift suggestions are perfect for the woman in your life. Unless of course you bought her every single thing on this list for her previous birthday, chances are that you will be right on the target when you splurge for the woman of your dreams.
