Article Side

Relationship Help for a Lasting Long Distance Relationship by Jim Anderson

Article published on June 12th 2012 | Relationship

Being involved in a long distance relationship can be a difficult thing to handle. When you live a significant distance apart from the person you love, a wide array of emotions can make you feel as if you are going crazy.

There are many marriages and committed relationships that have survived being away from each other for long periods of time. It isnâ€™t as uncommon as one would think. With the number of internet dating sites on the rise, more and more people are seeking advice for relationship to help them improve and maintain their relationships with far away love mates.

Take the Time to Talk on the Phone

Relationship communication is of the utmost importance when you live in a different city or state from your loved one. Being able to talk to one another is the only way that you both will be able to stay connected. Letâ€™s face it; without having communication, there really wouldnâ€™t be a relationship

Talking on the phone is a great way to express your feelings with your lover. It seems that everybody is incredibly busy nowadays, but taking a few minutes at lunchtime or after work to talk on the phone is a good way to keep the lines of communication open.

Wisdom for love: Donâ€™t forget to tell your loved one exactly how you feel about them. Some people get jealous when they are apart so be sure that your mate knows that he or she is the only one in your life.

Donâ€™t Become a Nuisance

The main reason that a long distance relationship can fail is because one of the parties becomes way too possessive. Texting is a nice way to tell a loved one how you feel when you are apart however, many people go over the top with it. This can cause the other person to begin pulling away.

A few texts over the course of the day are good for relationship communication. You could tell your partner that you care about them, to have a good day or simply that you are thinking of or missing them. You should avoid asking them where they are, who theyâ€™re with or what their plans are. Those questions make you appear that you donâ€™t trust your partner and could cause a rift in the relationship, if not its demise.

Set Goals Together

Itâ€™s important that the two of you take the time to set goals for the future of your relationship. You neednâ€™t be talking about living together or getting married but there are goals that need to be discussed and set. Goal setting is best done in person but you can also do this on Skype or a similar video chat program. You can plan when you will be able to do things together by setting goals.

Long weekends are a great time for you both to find ways to be together. One person doesnâ€™t need to drive or fly to the otherâ€™ home. Each person can get to a point that is midway to ease the financial burden of travel or you can take turns going to each otherâ€™ houses. When one person has to constantly lay out the cash to be together, financial issues can arise.

Wisdom for love says that mutual trust, good communication skills and respect for each otherâ€™ finances are the keys to keeping your long distance relationship healthy and happy. You should always be mindful of the advice on relationships as well as your partnerâ€™s feeling and you are sure to have a successful relationship.

Article Source:
http://www.articleside.com/relationship-articles/relationship-help-for-a-lasting-long-distance-relationship.htm - Article Side

Jim Anderson - About Author:
Jim Anderson is a freelance writer who writes extensively about people tackling problems in their a love relationships and the relationship quotes which provide wisdom for love and practical relationship help. He provides advice for relationship to help people improve communication in their love and relationships.

Article Keywords:
advice for relationship, relationship help, wisdom for love, love advice, advice on relationships, wisdom in relationships

You can find more free articles on Article Side. Sign up today and share your knowledge to the community! It is completely FREE!