SMO is the acronym for Social Media Optimization, and is a process in which content is spread across multiple social media outlets in order to generate and maintain viral publicity, by increasing the awareness of a brand, event, service or product. Marketing your website via Social Media networks incorporates the use of social media, social bookmarking and social news sites, as well as blogging, RSS feeds and video sites. As an SMO company Zoom Web Media understands how each of these important elements should be leveraged as division of the overall Social Media Marketing plan. There are some important tips for you as Facebook, Twitter and YouTube these sites get the most traffic. Create a profile and a group. Brand both and make it clear that it is a professional corporate profile.

Always link to your corporate site. Give something of value. Why should someone visit your profile, group, or website again? These offer something unique audio clips, video clips, e cards, downloads, forums, etc. It needs to be something that they can not get anywhere else. Make offers. Create promotions. Upload a coupon. Keep these offers fresh to encourage return visitors. For web design and development consider creating a micro site to draw traffic for lead tracking. Influence your lead generated data to improve your results. Strategize your site. Be sure you can capture data and message back out. Also ask why should someone return? Make it interactive. Consider optimized blogging. Link your blogs on social media sites and your website as well. This can help new pages on your site get indexed rapidly.

You can use free blogging sites to get started. Numerous SMO firms miss this very important element of the overall content strategy.
