Reglazing glasses is growing more popular today as consumers get to enjoy more savings. With glasses reglaze procedure, consumers need only to change their lenses and not the frame. This is where the savings come from. Spectacle frames can be very expensive as some are branded frames which can cost many times more than the lenses. Hence, if a consumer has purchased a really expensive pair of frames, it would be quite a waste of money changing the frame just because the changed prescription requires a changing of the lenses.

Hence, reglazing glasses would be more logical in this case than to waste more money changing the frame as well, especially when the frame is in excellent condition. The reglaze process can be very quick with the frames and consumer prescription sent to the reglaze service provider using their Freepost pack which is safe and sturdy.

The reglaze experts would analyze the consumerâ€™s glasses first to establish the lens type; then a quick call to the consumer to brief and discuss the range of lens options. Once the consumer decides on the lens type, payment can be made and reglazing begins. The completed reglazed glasses would be sent back to the consumer through postal mail.

There is no need to make any trip to the optical stores or see the optician personally for repeated testing for the right prescription. There is no extra cost incurred by the consumer except for the low postal stamp fee.

Reglaze lenses

There are three types of lens; single vision, bi-focal and varifocals. Single vision lenses are very simple; their reglazing can take just a couple of days after the order to reglaze is confirmed. Varifocals may take about two weeks as there are many types of lenses for varifocals.

Rimless glasses are also another possible choice for reglaze services; however, it may be a slightly higher cost or there may be an extra charge, depending on the reglaze service provider. Rimless glasses require more intensive labor than other types of frames with borders. Rimless glazing requires more skills in precision during the reglazing procedure.

Good and skilled reglaze service providers have experienced experts who can glaze any lens into any frame. However, the discerning consumer should confirm if the reglaze expert has a good track record in the desired type of frame and lens.

Some frames can be quite complicated and challenging; other frames can be very expensive. Glazing experts must be skilled and precise in their workmanship.
