Adhesive tapes have different applications in day to day living. They are used in the craft work of by children and or fixing any other thing. These tapes sometime perform more important work like changing the look of your floor but they are made especially for serving that purpose. In general the fixing of things through adhesive tapes are temporary but that is not applicable everywhere. Foam tapes have different uses than general adhesive tapes. You will find both single sided and double sided foam tape in the market with different use.

double sided foam tapeDouble sided foam tapes have more specification. These are quite thick in nature and they are used for anti vibration, industrial mounting, and mounting products that are heavy and need more support. These tapes have more peel and holding power than the single sided ones. These tapes are generally used where the company wants to avoid mechanical fixing that is more costly and require more hard work. The use of acrylic item is found highest with this form of double sided adhesive tape. These are very convenient to use and no special training is needed to fix them to items where jerking needs to be prohibited.

In general the double sided tapedouble sided tape has adhesive on both the side. In case of foam tape the foam lies in between. The adhesive needs to be guarded by something so that the power of the adhesive is kept intact. The cover is generally made of material that will not take away the adhesive while putting it off. You just need to take out the sticker add use the double sided tape wherever you want. They have a strong binding power. This will allow it to keep the things on both the side together for long.
