There is great news for all those Android fans who swear by their Android phones. A company name BlueStacks has recently launched an application which will run all your Android apps on pc. Just born in May 2011, the company has already fetched over $14 million as financial support. It is an astonishing fact that within 2 months of launch, the BlueStacks has been downloaded over 550 thousands times.

BlueStacks is developed with one motto only, to run Android apps on pc. A huge number of people are joining the group and making the full use of android apps for pc software. BlueStacks is currently in its Beta stage and is poised for a big growth. It supports both the latest version of Windows XP and Windows Vista. However, few glitches were noticed while the application was used in conjunction with Windows 7.

There are many Android apps for pc that comes bundled with the free downloadable version of BlueStacks. Few of the famous and known apps are from the house of Bloomberg and Living Social. Statistics has shown that a vast number of people loved to play the famous android game Drag Racing on the full screen of their PC and laptop. Though, the android tablet users too are joining the bandwagon and are going crazy and looking for android apps for pc.

BlueStacks were surprised to see the download statistics that a major download contribution request came from other parts of the world too. The official figures accounts for merely 35% from the USA while 32% from Europe and Asia shared the download figure. One needs to wait and watch to see the exact path that this revolution takes.

Mass public is never satisfied with the technology and are always hungry for new and innovative technical advancements. In the field of mobile computing and mobile games, there is no end or no looking back. Everyday is a new day and something or the other new development occurs. One will not have to wait much longer to see a giant leap in the number of users using android apps for pc.
